good. All the dreams that call forth good. good. good. good. good. good. good. good.

— All the dreams that call forth good.

On the hills, behind St.Peter's South-east wind, Ju-ly with smell of hay,
 All the dreams that chase each other
 All the dreams that call forth good.

And day breaks and glows with comfort,
 Having cracked the dark of days,
 Dark that hides as if for jealousy from us
 The light of Paradise.

In your heart it's time for kissing,
 Time for love, revealed to none, disappeared when August crickets sadly sing us signs that Autumn's here.

Original language (Friulan)

Sore i roncs, daûr San Pieri, cul sciroc o in Luj ch'al sa di fen, ducj i siums si cirin simpri, ducj i siums a clamin ben.

E a consolin lis albadis che an cricât il scûr dai dîs che gjelôs al ten platât, di simpri, il lusôr dal Paradîs.

E tal cûr timp di bussadis, timp di un fûc mai dite a d'un, distudât cui avostans, mai légris, in te scune di un autun.

Italian translation

*Sulle colline, dietro San Pietro, con lo scirocco
 o in Luglio profumato di fieno, tutti i sogni si cercano sempre, tutti i sogni portano il bene.*

E consolano i fugaci chiarori che hanno incrinato il buio dei giorni che geloso nasconde, da sempre, la luce del Paradiso.

E nel cuore il tempo di baci, il tempo di un amore mai svelato a nessuno, che si è spento assieme al canto degli ormai tristi grilli agostani nella culla di un autunno.

Beyond St.Peter's little church, in Tricesimo, there are some hills, still in their remote silence. And once more thoughts search for hopes in the answers to impossible questions. There comes again the emotion of the first secret love and peaceful dreams grow stronger.
